Biographical/Historical Note

After secession in 1861, the Confederate States of America (CSA) created a war department and three main armies, or corps, the largest of which was the Army of Northern Virginia. However, the CSA relied heavily on state-level brigades and regiments throughout the Civil War. Similarly modeled to the Union armies, the CSA military consisted of infantry, artillery, and cavalry. Infantry consisted of three corps, which split into three infantry divisions, plus an artillery battalion. Each division consisted of three to four brigades, each brigade containing four to six regiments. An infantry regiment consisted of 10 companies, each with 1,100 men and officers. A company was then divided into two platoons. The majority of the CSA's regiments were volunteer outfits. Artilleries also consisted of regiments, which were composed of batteries, rather than companies. Each battery included 100 men and four to six cannons. The CSA's cavalry consisted of regiments divided into battalions, with each battalion consisting of 10 to 12 troops. Troops were further divided into squadrons.

Scope and Content Note

This collection consists of pay vouchers, muster rolls, etc. from Georgia soldiers as well as soldiers from other states serving in Georgia. They were primarily kept by Captain N. B. Brown, Assistant Quartermaster, Acting Paymaster. They are arranged in numerical order as assigned by Brown.

The bulk of this collection consists of pay vouchers. The remainder consists of muster, pay and bounty rolls, returns of ordnance, provisions and pay accounts, discharges, and descriptive lists. Several Georgia regiments are represented including infantry, artillery, cavalry, and independent companies. Also included are documents pertaining to Confederate units from other states. The military companies, batteries, and camps surrounding Savannah figure prominently.

There are also non-financial documents in the collection. There is a handwritten copy of the petition to Jefferson Davis by several commanding officers for the removal of General Braxton Bragg, October 4, 1863. There are also letters and reports from various brigades of Stewart's Division concerning the battles of Missionary Ridge and Chickamauga.

The following regiments, battalions, artilleries, cavalry, and batteries are included in this collection: 1st Georgia Regiment (Co. C, Emmett Rifles); 38th Georgia Regiment (Co. Also included in this collection: the 4th Louisiana Battalion; Stewart's Division (Bates Brigade; Brown's Brigade; Clayton's Brigade; Strahl's Brigade; Adam's Brigade; Capt. TH Stanford's Brigade; Maj. AP Stewart's Brigade; Stovall's Brigade); McClelland's Florida Volunteer Battalion (Jackson Guard).

This collection was arranged by Work Projects Administration workers in the 1930s. They prepared a detailed card file indexing the collection. This index consists of an alphabetical list of names found within the collection and a list of commands (alphabetical and numerical). Also listed in the miscellaneous index are camps, forts, batteries, battles, hospitals, and army departments. These items are indexed by bundle and package numbers on the cards which correspond with the bundle and package numbers listed in this finding aid.

The original WPA index of personal names has been transcribed and is available with the print finding aid in the Georgia Historical Society reading room. This index includes accurate item numbers. However, the box numbers listed in the print index are incorrect and require updating.
