Scope and Content Note

This collection contains a demo videotape of a proposed documentary titled From Black to Blue, along with an outline of the program from 1997. This project documents Savannah, Georgia's early civil rights triumph by appointing nine African-American men to the city's police department on 5 May 1947 during a time in which the south was still heavily segregated. The video and outline include interviews with these police officers as they recount their experiences patrolling the streets of Savannah.
